Knowing Your Neighbour

Brian Wiraatmadja

At only 35 years old, Brian Wiraatmadja has achieved remarkable success and accumulated wealth at a notably young age. Yet, his work ethic and determination are poised to take him to even greater heights. In this edition of Knowing Your Neighbour, Brian delves into topics ranging from his definition of success and the sacrifices it entails, to lifestyle choices and ultimately choosing the St. Regis brand.

Having graduated from Melbourne University with a major in Information Systems, Brian's academic journey continues when he successfully completed an MBA from the prestigious Peking University in Beijing, China.

Through this educational background, Brian is able to cultivate a broad network and enrich his perspective and language skills, enabling him to speak fluently in three languages. These vital capabilities, in turn, played a pivotal role in his journey in starting a business within the financial industry.

Knowing Your Neighbour

To Brian, success does not come within a day and requires a sacrifice of time, energy, and money. Often, this pursuit of success entails making difficult choices, including compromising on one's lifestyle and work-life balance. He understands that the interpretation of success can be highly individualized, varying from person to person. For some, it's synonymous with self-fulfillment and the attainment of personal aspirations. However, in Brian's perspective, while acknowledging the diverse dimensions of success, financial prosperity stands as a significant benchmark of achievement.

While recognizing that lifestyle choices are diverse, Brian takes pride in having an acquired taste, especially in identifying quality products, high level of service, attention to detail, and luxurious hospitality. These qualities resonate deeply with him, naturally fostering a profound attraction to the St. Regis brand. "St. Regis through its attentive service and high-end amenities provides a sense of relaxation and security. Whenever I enter the complex, I feel that I am in a home away from home".

Brian continues by adding that The Residences at The St. Regis Jakarta captures the perfect balance between community living as well as privacy and discretion. Having excellent community spaces and facilities such as gym, swimming pools, children's club, and wine lounge and having exclusive spaces such as private dining areas and cinema ensure Brian that he can enjoy the best of both worlds. In addition, the 24-hour concierge services allows all his needs as a resident is attentively met.

When asked about why he chose St. Regis, he first explained the benefits of owning a property, ranging from potential growth as an investment, personal utilization, and a combination of both. The Residences at The St. Regis Jakarta's combination of prime location, high quality standard, and strong premium brand will ensure that it retains a high resale value for many years to come. "You rarely go wrong with purchasing a solid property at an excellent location. An asset that will go up in value is not a consumptive spending"
